P. Hmph. D. Alleging that that had been leaked by me to them and theo, of course, that was not true. P. That's not true.

D. And the other fellow they are calling is a fellow by the name of Thomas Lombard who is trying to establish a link between Dean on that one. Lombard did volunteer work for me in my office and did volunteer work for Liddy and at one time he saw Liddy in my office. Big deal. It was purely campaign, you know.

Questions on Testimony

P. Well, is that what Lombard will testify to, or will be testify to-D. Well, he has written a very lengthy letter to the Committee declining to testify originally and saying this is all I would have to say and it is probably not relevant. I know nothing of Dean and Liddy's connection. P. Right. D. Other than the fact that they-

P. That's not bad then-maybe he will make a pretty good witness. D. He might.

P. What about the Hoback girl? D. The Hoback girl should be broken down. She should come out in tears as a result of the fact that she is virtually lying about one thing and our people will be on the-

P. You mean-do our people know what to ask her? D. Yes they do. Yes they do.

P. Uh, huh. Why is she doing it? Do we know? D. She-ah-P. Disgrimtled? Somebody-D. Disgruntled. She has been fairly disgruntled all along. She is a Democrat that worked over there in Finance Committee. She professes a personal loyalty to Maury Stans but that is about the extent of it, any, of her loyalty, P. Yeah, D. I never have figured out how she got in there.

[Material unrelated to Prestdential action deleted.] P. They didn't bite the builet with regard to subpoenaing you?

D. No. I don't think there is any chance they are going to do that

P. That's rather interesting isn't it? Something ought to be made of that.

D. Unless they get-they are taking more evidence on me. Obviously with these other two witnesses, not that I think It will just be more—I had a conversation with John Ehrlichman this afternoon before he came down to visit you. I think that ooe thing that we have to con-tinue to do, and particularly right now, is to examine the broadest. broadest implications of this whole thing, and, you know, maybe about 30 minutes of just my recitation to you of facts so that you operate from the same

P. Could you do it tomorrow? D. Yes, Sir, Yes. Sir.

P. Uh, huh, Well, then we could probably do it, say, around ten o'clock. D. That would be fine, P. Do you just want to do lt

P. Anybody else they are all partisan interest virtually. D. That's right P. Right. Fine. The other thing

I was going to say just is thisjust for your own thinking-I still want to see, though I guess you and Dick are still working on your letter and all that sort of thing? D. We are and we are coming to-the more we work on it the more questions we see -

P. That you don't want to answer, huh? D, that bring problems by answering.

P. And so you are coming up. then, with the idea of just a stonewall then? Is that D. That's right.

P. Is that what you come down with? D. Stonewall, with lots of noises that we are alway; willing to cooperate, but no one is asking us for anything P. And they never will, huli?

There is no way that you could make even a general statement that I could put out? You understand what I-D. I think we could.

P. See, for example, I was even thinking if you could even talk to Cabinet, the leaders, you know, just orally and say. "I have looked into this, and this is that," so that people get sort of a feeling tbat-P. Your own people have got to be reassured, D. Uh. hith.

P. Could you do that? D. Well, I think I can but I don't think. you would want to make that decision until we have about a-

Where All the Bodies Are P. No, I want to know. I want to know where all the bodies are D. And then, once you decide after that, we can program it anyway you want to do it. P. Yeah, Because I think, for example, you could do it orally, even if you don't want to make the written statement. You could do it orally before the Cabinet. the leaders and the rest. Lay it all out. You see, I would not be present. You just lay it all out and I just-See what I mean? D. Uh, huh. P. Now that is one thing. The other thing is that I do think there is something to be said for not maybe this complete answer to this fellow, but maybe versions are these; bing, bling, bling, That is a possibility. D.

Uh, bul. P. What I mean is we need something to answer somebody, answer things, you know they say. "What are you basing this on." I can say. "Well my counsel has advised me that"—Is toat possible or not, or are-D. Well, you know there is facts that everybody else has. P. FBI report which we have prot. ably not relied upon enough There is not one scintilla o' evidence. P. I know. But I mean, can't you say that? Or do you want to put it out? D. Ah. it could be said, and it is something we haven't really emphasized. Pat

Gray is the only person who has said it and it has really never gotten picked up. P. How would you do it then? What I meant, isn't that something that you could say? Do you want to publish the FBI report? D. Oh. no, because at our own strictures we are trying top lace and up-right-P. But you could say, "I have this and this is that." Fine. Sewhat I am getting at is that, if apart from a statement to the committee or anything else, if you could just make a statement to me that we can use. You know, for internal nurposes and to answer questions, etc. D. As we did when you, back in August made the statement that-P. That's right. D. And all the things-

Method Discussed

P. You've got to have some thing where it doesn't appear that I am doing this in, you know, just in a-saying to hell with the Congress and to hell with the people, we are not going to tell you anything because of Executive Privilege, That, they don't understand, But if you say, "No. we are willing to cooperate," and you've made a contplete statement, but make it very incomplete. See, that is what I mean. I don't want a too much in chapter and verse as you did in your letter. I just want just a general-D. An all around statement.

P. That's right. Try just some thing general. Like "I have checked into this matter. I can categorically, based on my investigation, the following: Haldeman is not involved in this, that and the other thing. Mr. Colsoo did not do this. Mr. so and so did not do this, Mr. Blauk did not do this," Right down the line, taking the most glaring things. If there are any further ques-tions, please let me know, See? D. Uh, huh, I think we can do that. P. That is one possibility, and then you could say that such things-and then use the FBI report to the Cabinet and to the leaders. It might just be very salutary. You see our own people have got to have confidence or they are not going to step up and defend us. You see our problem there, don't you?

D. And I think at the same time it would be good to brief these people on what Executive-Privilege means, so they can go out and speak about it. Some of them are floundering. P. And why it is necessary. D I thought about naving someore prepare some material that can be put out by the Congressional people so they can understand, people can understand. It is tremendous to have a plece of paper that they know they can talk from. P. Pointing out that you are defending the Constitution: responsibility of the separation of powers; and we have to do it Distinguishing the Adam's case ignoring Flanigan, which is our we should never have agreed to but nevertheless-Anyway let'. think a little about that, bu we'll see you at ten o'clock tomorrow. Mr. Door said that the committee experts had been able, for instance, to "decipher" portions of a crucial March 31, 1973, conversation between the President and John Dean 3d, the former White House legal counsel. He said that conversation that did not appear on either two transcripts made by the White House and a third prepared by the special Watergate prosecutor had been detected by the committee

Mr. Nixon has offered to let the committee chairman, Rep. Peter Rodino jr., D-N.J., and the ranking Republican member, Rep. Edward Hutchinson of Michigan audit the tapes to verify the accuracy of the transcripts.

Rep. Rodino said last night. bowever, that he had listened to some of the committee's copies "it woold be absolutely impossible for me to adequately and fully and responsibly authenticate" the

"We did subporns specific documents of specific facts of specific relevance to our inquiry," Rep. Rodino went on. "We had hoped and expected the President lawfully to comply. The President did not."

Several Republicans objected that the charge was "unfair," as Rep. David Demnis of Indiana stated it, because it made the President appear to be defying the committee on a wide assort-ment of requested items that the committee did not know for certain even existed.

Rep. Hutchinson pleaded with the committee to follow the road of discussion, negotiation and He said a censure, no matter

Reliving His 'First Crisis'

Nixon, in Watergate Talks, Often Referred to Hiss Case

By Linda Mathews

name of Alger Hiss pops up again and again in the transcripts of President Nixon's private Watergate conversations.

The former State Department official, convicted in 1950 of lying to a federal grand jury about leaking secret government docu-ments, may have been relegated to the history books, as far as most people are concerned. But to President Nixon, who won na-tional recognition during the congressional investigation of Hiss, his quarry is still very real.

According to the Watergate transcripts, Mr. Nixon occasional-iv relives the Hiss battle 25 years later, regaling his young aides with all the details and drawing analogies to Watergate. Detective Work

On Feb. 28, 1973, as he conulted with John Dean 3d about he Senate Watergate commitee's forthcoming hearings, Mr. Nixon suddenly reminisced about he Hiss investigation. The Presient suggested that Dean "go back and read Chapter One of Six Crises," his book on his

The Senate then approved, 44 in 41, reimposition of controls on companies that violate price-restraint commitments they gave the Cost of Living Council

By that same vote it also endorsed a proposal, nominally supported by the White House, to reate an agency to monitor inflation. The agency would conduct public hearings and call attention to inflationary prac-tices and policies of business, labor and even the federal government, but it would have on authority to roll back prices or

The transcripts portray Mr. Petersen as a dedicated prosecutor but determined to keep the scandal away from Mr. Nixon personally because he was convinced that Mr. Nixon was not involved Petersen Summaries

The transcripts included tape ecordings of several conversations in which Mr. Petersen summariz ed for Mr. Nixon the grand jury proceedings in April, 1973.

Asked why he did so, Mr. Petersen said, "We thought he had a right to know."

On April 17, 1973, three days after former White House counsel John Dean took his story to tha Watergate prosecutors, Mr. Petersen met Mr. Nixon in the White House, According to the transcripts, Mr. Nixon made a major point to the prosecutorthat anything Dean knew he probably knew alone.

The transcripts also quote Dean as saying, in response to a Nixon question, that Mr. Petersen was a "soldier."

Mr. Haldeman made his request in the form of a discovery motion filed today in U.S. Dis-trict Court, where he and six other former White House and Nixon campaign advisers are ac-cused of attempting to cover up the Watergate scandal.

Mr. Haldeman's request was not limited to conversations about Watergate but would include all conversations with the

the Senate Watergate committee. He also said be agreed with Assistant U.S. Attorney Earl Silbert, who said recently that investigators considered Dean cooperative with their probe early in the investigation while Dean

Agnew Barred By Court From Practicing Law

ANNAPOLIS, Md. May 2 (AP) .-- Former Vice-President Spiro Agnew was ordered disbarred today from the practice of law by the Maryland Court of Appeals.

Agnew resigned as Vice-President in October after pleading no contest to income tax evasion. The plea has the legal status of a conviction on the charge.

'To do other than disbar the respondent in this case. would constitute a travesty of our responsibility," the sevenjudge court said. The ruling affirmed . recommendation made in January by a threejudge circuit court panel.

Iraq Reopens Post On Turk Border

DIYARBAKIR, Turkey, May 2 (Reuters) -Iraq today reopened its border post on the Turkish frontier for the first time since fighting between Iraqi government forces and Kurdish rebels broke out in March.

A 2,000-man armored force of government troops, supported by 2,500 Kurdish mercenaries, re-captured the post on Tuesday, after it had been in rebel hands for seven weeks.

The Voice of Kurdistan, the rebel radio monitored in eastern Turkey, reported that fighting was continuing elsewhere in northern Iraq. The radio accus-ed the Iraqi Air Force of killing 63 Kurdish civilians in two raids and said the rebels had blown up a natural gas pipeline near Urgup. .

Barnstorming Mitterrand Is a Slick Political Performer

By Jonathan C. Randal

DIJON, France, May 2 'WP).-A tired François Mitterrand communed here Tuesday night with nearly 7,000 admirers in another of the lay masses the candidate of the united left has conducted in the last two weeks to enhance his presidential ambitions.

The 51-year-old Socialist leader at times seemed to race through his set speech, telescoping words and losing listeners who drifted away from the vast cow barn of a meeting hall, which was not designed with accustics in mind. Yet, for the local faithful in this eastern French city, which has not elected a leftist candidate to national office since the late Gen. Charles de Gaulle took power in 1958, it was a moving berformance. Arriving from Paris more than

His intricate use of handsnow cupped, now pointing, now leaning on the front of the podium-combined with a practiced dehater's sense of timing and a well-timbred voice, left little doubt that Mr. Mitterrand's long years in the National Asssembly have made him into one of France's most forceful public speakers. party's reputation. "Our prime minister," Mr. Mitterrand said, "now who is it?" as the crowd roared approval.

In pursuing his major campsign theme that the finance minister had reduced the other ministries to "colonies," Mr. Mit-terrand did not quarrel with France's unquestioned record of economic growth.

Rather he criticized how the wealth had been shared and, in a series of often snide remarks, asked: "Who pays for growth?" A List

He listed the farmers, bedevilled by falling prices; small business-man forced into bankruptcy in increasing numbers; repatriated settlers from North Africa, still awaiting indemnities promised more than a decade ago; immigrant workers living in "intolerable" conditions; the elderly, surviving on a pittance; holders of government savings accounts, receiving 6 percent interest when borrowing rates normally run at 12 percent or more and inflation is running at about 18 percent.

But in perhaps an understandable effort to attract the vital fringe Centrist voters he needs to win, Mr. Mitterand went no further than pledging allegiance to otherwise unexplained "fundamental options" of the controversial joint election program signed in 1972 by the Socialists. Communists and a dissident Centrist group,

This reluctance to accept total identification with the Communist party-a sentiment tha Communists have accepted with good grace, at least in public-led Mr. Mitterrand to justify his course as "collectivism," one of the many euphemisms for Communism employed in the French political vocahulary.

Collectivism, he insisted, had heen practised by early Christian communities and did not mean that he was going to confiscate everyone's private property if he

Middle-Class Fears Also in an effort to calm middle-class fears, Mr. Mitterrand argued that his victory would insure serene labor relations. "We are in a position to maintain social peace," he insisted, "because we can discuss other understand the sacrifices we must make."

If the Gaullist-dominated coalition had been guilty of "confiscating" the nation's wealth for a tiny minority, Mr. Mitterrand argued, its other cardinal sins were "haughtiness, insolence and contempt" for the nation's republican institutione.

"They cut the country in two," he intoned to wild cheering, castigating his adversaries for suggesting that the left, once in power, would constitute an intol-erable "heli" for Frenchmen.

He concluded what he termed a "joyous fete" by paraphrasing Mao Tse-tung, "Power does not come out of a gun-becruse they [Mr. Mitterrand's political opponents] have the guns-but it may

With high-speed computers, mountains of data, textbook theories and fancy mathematics, the economists have invaded the traritory of historians, the tra-tional arbiters of what slavery was and was not. And the historians, a group with little internal cohesion, are uncertain just how to respond.

Although the dispute has been building for years, it hurst into full force this week with publication of "Time on the Cross," a two-volume analysis of slave history hy economists Robert Fogel and Stanley Engerman, both professors at Rochester University, both quasi historians and both skilled mathematicians.

New Tenets

Prof. Fogel and Prof. Engerman have slashed their way through the history books of slavery, leaving almost nothing behind them intact. With a mixture of intellectual delight and academic challenge, they attacked one after another the traditional views. of the Old South and came up with tenets of their own, among them the following:

 Slavery was not a dving. profitless business but the "growth industry of its day." as Prof. Fogel puts it.

 Slave agriculture was not backward and inefficient, but about 35 percent more efficient than "free" farming. · Slaves, were not lazy, incompetent workers. They were tough team laborers, more efficient than-their white counterparts. · Slave families were not generally torn apart by wicked white traders selling them "down the river." Instead, slaveholders had an economic incentive to keep the family unit together and to keep worker morale high, . · Slave women were not used on stud farms to breed new slaves, nor were they typically forced to hed with slaveholders. Indeed, slave women generally abstained from sexual activity hefore marriage.

· Slaves were not worked to exhaustion. Instead, they were relatively well fed, housed and clothed because of their key part in the production process. - elary Committee over the proper reaction to Mr. Nixon's response to the committee's subpoena may constitute a tactical success for the President. But it also illustrates how a really serious study of White House involvement in Watergate can be imperiled by concentrating on what is missing in the way of possible evidence instead of-initially. at least-on what is available, Rep. Wiley Mayne, R-Iowa, made a sensible suggestion: the transcripts contained "a tremendous amount of information we've never had before," and that should be "digested" before the committee took any action based on it.

This takes time, and Watergate has already consumed so much time, and diverted so much official energy, that it has become enormously expensive to the nation. But Anatole France, in his parody of the Dreyfus case, pointed out how damaging a vast accumulation of evidence, and irrelevancies disguised as evidence, and forgeries purporting to be evidence, can become when it is stored away. It can overflow the filing cabinets and smother the accumulators.

There has been a notion that the White House tapes would give simple answers to the question of the extent to which President Nixon was directly responsible for illegal acts by his agents, or for the ensuing efforts to cover them up. The transcripts do not provide that answer in any direct waybut neither do they rule out, absolutely, such a responsibility. Rather, they testify to a

The sharp division within the House Judi- climate in the White House in which Watergate and the cover-up became possible.

Perhaps somewhere in a missing tape or an "unintelligible" remark something more specific is still concealed. But a careful study of the available transcripts can still provide the basis for considered judgments, and exploration in detail of the gaps that exist. And that is a more reasonable manner of approaching the solemn issues in this tangled case than additional blanket subpoenas.

There is also the very knotty question of the committee's powers under the Constitution and its ability to enforce the powers it claims. To make the President's refusal to give full compliance to the committee aubpoena an article in an impeachment is, of course, possible. But then the constitutional and political question arises as to whether Congress, which unquestionably has the right and the power to impeach, is acting wisely, and with a proper regard to precedent, in making its rules too sweeping. That was one of the reasons the impeachmeut of President Andrew Johnson has been condemned by history: It was largely based on Johnson's refusal to comply with bad congressional statutes, passed with the specific purpose of hemming him in. The House Judiciary Committee subpoens and the Tenure of Office Act (which led to Andrew Johnson's impeachment) are by no means the same, but Congress would be wise to avoid even the appearance of similarity by sifting what it has before it insists on more.

Path to Peace in Africa

Gen. Antonio de Spinola'a plan for giving Portugal's African territories self-government inside a federation with the mother country could be a halfway house on the road to full independence for Angola, Mozambique and Guinea-Bissau. The similarity of the federation idea to Gen, Charles de Gaulle's French community concept of the 1950s is striking; the parallel could also be

In the plebiscite that created Gen. de Gaulle's Fifth French Republic in 1958, all of France's black African territories except Guinea-which opted for immediate independence-voted for autonomy within the French community, with France handling their defense and foreign relations. In little more than two years, however, every one of them had negotiated full independence with De Gaulle's blessing, while retaining close economic, fiscal and defense ties with Paris.

Obviously struck by the De Gaulle example in trying to figure out a way to extricate Portugal honorably from the costly morass of its African wars, Spinola also proposes that his federation of four "equal states" should leave Lisbon responsible for foreign affairs, defense and finance. He says "selfdetermination should not be confused with independence"; he will not even contemplate Independence at present.

What both Gen. Spinola and leaders of the African liberation movement who now reject his federation would find is that in the existing African political climate, self-determination would lead inexorably to independence. The general will also discover that the sooner Portugal begins serious negotiations with these leaders the better will be its chances of preserving valuable links with the territories when they do become independent, even though they may not wish to be tied too tightly to Lisbon as some of the old French colonies still are to France.

"We must continue in Africa, certainly," wrote Spinola in the book that helped provoke the overthrow of Portugal's authoritarian government and elevate him to power. "But not by force of arms nor by the subjection of Africans nor by the upholding of myths against which the world is fighting." On their side, for the leaders of the liberation movements to reject negotiations with such a man in the hope of achieving immediate total victory would be to waste lives and risk military intervention from South

Nixon and Watergate

The Nixon speech was a desperate move of a President who finds the water has reached his neck, for whom attack can be the only defense... It is obviously the most daring and riskiest attempt by Nixon in his entire career to keep himself above water ... Anyone who reads the extracts must doubt he can succeed.

-From the Stuttgarter Zeitung (Stuttgart).

It is not clear on what the optimism of the [Nixon] lawyers is based, definitely not on the released texts. The optimistic remark by Nixon's press chief that the release of the tapes means the end of Watergate is premature. At most, it means the beginning of the last episode

-From the Algemeen Dagblad (Rotterdam). * * *

Once again Mr. Nixon has spoken to the nation and once again has falled to convince. The massive volume of transcripts of his tape-recorded conversations at the White House, delivered to the House Judiciary Committee, is but the latest, though far the most extensive, in a succession of attempts by the President to clear his name in the Watergate affair and bring the whole nightmare to an end. Each new revelation, dragged out into the light of day by his accusers, seems to put the President in deeper travail. It will take a little time, no doubt, for the transcripts to be sifted and studied, but it is already evident from the first reactions in Washington that the new material raises more questions than it answers about the President's role in the investigation into Watergate. The incompleteness of the transcripts, the gaps and elisions, will intensify congressional demands to hear the tapes themselves. And so the pressure for further disclosures will go on.

Italy's Economy

The Italian decision to impose direct controls on imports is the latest indication of the strains which the massive oil price increases of last year are inflicting on the world's money system. For the moment, the Italians will almost certainly not be copied by any other major country . . . The measures probably will not have a dramatic effect on the volume of imports into Italy, but they will make it less certain that the world will weather the oil crisis without precipitating an international trade recession... Not only may the Italian measures be the first hint of an international epidemie of "beggar-myueighbor" trade policies, they may create yet another rift in the tattered Common

The word "negotiations" is between brackets deliberately be-cause the 35-nation Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe, now in its eighth month, has become a thicket of brackets the likes of which has never been seen before even in this capital of esoteric diplomacy. Practically every suggestion or amendment here is immediately divided into bracketed compartments. It has proved the only way to overcome Soviet stub-

ess and give the impression of movement, According to even the revised schedule, this second stage of the conference should now be drawing toward the end of its work of drafting resolutions. The timetable was that Brezimev, Nixon and other heads of goverument would gather in Helsinki in July to sign the final documents heralding a new era in Europe.

The Helsinki stage now looks unlikely before September. The reason is that amiable conversation ends once the coffee cups are drained in the Geneva delegates bar. The same friendly Russian or East European who has been telling his Western counterpart: 'Be patient... give a little more... we will be forthcoming liner once seated at the conference table.

The aim of the Western mations, which include the United States and Canada, is to throw away those "brackets," because each pair of them represents a restriction or a qualification of a lear-cut accord. One bitter Western delegate commented: "The Russians are fighting over every word that comes out from the brackets. I would guess by now that we have used up every single printer's mark in Geneva. The brackets represent points issue and are put in after an unsuccessful attempt has been made to weld a Western text to an Eastern one. One American expert explained: "We get some work done this way for the brackets enable us to move on before coming back. The brackets are useful if there is something in a draft text that someone doesn't like at all. Put it in brackets,' someone always says. Brackets, the expert added parenthetically, are also used to take care of small, awkward alternatives, the "ands" and the

A certain amount of this goes on at any intricate international conference, but the security and cooperation conference has beaten all records by a long shot.

One of the points at issue the length of prior warning of major military maneuvers— the NATO countries want 60 days notice that Warsaw Pact force are moving around and are prepared to give a similar guarantee: the European neutrals say only 30 days is necessary while the Russians think five days' warning is sufficient.

Border Zones

This so-called "confidence building measure" is linked to what constitutes a major military maneuver-one division or more, say the West Germans; at least four, reply the Russians, meaning one could keep slient about shifts of anything under $0,000 or 70,000 troops. Then there's the question of whether the whole of Europe should be included or just the border zones. No one denies that these are basic matters of national interest but it is still somewhat ridiculous that eight months of talk have led to one 114-word text in which only four words are not bracketed.

The most optimistic remark any Western delegate would make after the conference resumed last week was: "We are inching forward." The comment referred to a small breakthrough on increasing the distribution of Western newspapers in the Communist countries. More frequent comments made after another week of talk were "disappointing" and "discouraging." Some progress has been made on a text conceroing meetings between mem-bers of divided families, but one West German described as "disgusting" the Soviet attitude over family reunification and the high cost of exit visas which Moscow wents to impose.

Britain, West Germany and Italy have been trying to put some teeth into proposals for the freer flow of people and informa-They want to facilitate cross-border marriages and travel in general, publish an East-West magazine and have more joint TV programs. The West has softened its stand on several of these matters. And on the last evening before the Easter recess the West agreed with the Russians on a text concerning "the in-violability of frontiers" which a delighted Prayds called a step of exceptional significance."

Moscow's main aim in pushing this conference had been just that acceptance by the West of the postwar lines in Europe. The Western nations, particularly West Germany, want a reference to "peaceful changes" of boundaries written in later, thus keeping alive the possibility of German reunification.

With the stumbling block of the frontier question removed, West hoped that the conference would make further progress in the section devoted to "cooperation in humanitarian fields." Hopes rose a bit higher when the seven Warsaw Pact leaders stated after their mid-April aumnit that they were inested in cooperation as well

So far no new instructions have been given East bloo delegations in Geneva. They don't want to be pinned down on details. They won't come clean, complained one delegate from an REC country. This can be seen for example when the British insist that people who apply to leave a country should not be discriminated against or lose their jobs, should their request be

There is continued Soviet insistence on "preambles," in-troductory statements full of "key" words like "nominterference, sovereignty, local laws and cuswhich the delegates feel will empty what follows of any real meaning.

- President Nixon in conversation with John Dean and H. R. Haldeman, March 21, 1973.

The most depressing passage, or most frightening, may be one on March 21 in which the President, Haldeman and Dean work. up among themselves a "national rationale to explain away the Ellsberg burglary if Howard Hunt should talk. In his speech to the nation this week Nixon suggested that paying off to keep him from disclosing "national security" matters. But the March 21 transcript makes clear that the only secret involved was the raid on Elisberg's psychiatrist. The March 21 tape is the heart of the matter. Richard Nixon has achievements to his credit, and individual kindnesses. But I doobt that any fair-minded person could read even the edited transcript of that one conversation, stripped of nasty words and personal characterizations, with-out feeling that there is an ugly strain in the man's character.

Persuasive

And more: That tape is persuasive evidence that the President obstructed justice. Whatever Nixon knew before, he knew then that Jeb Magruder and Egil Krogh and probably others had committed crimes, and he did not tell his officials at the Justice Department and FRI-not until Dean and Magruder began talking themselves. Again, Nixon's words about Howard Hunt's immediate demand for money add up to a yes, and $75,000 was paid. The strange thing about this week in Watergate is that it began so well for Nixon. First there was the acquittal of John Mitchell and Maurice Stans. Then there was the President's speech, very likely the most effective he has ever made. Listening to his explanation of what was about to be disclosed, one wondered why he had not disclosed disclosure, when it came, quickly began to erode belief. Eleven of the subposensed tapes were missing. The editing was not even a "Stennis compromise": No independent party youched for the transcripts. No experts would be allowed to check tape gaps marked "mintelligible." The President's staff had spent months editing these transcripts, but the House Judiciary Commit-tee leaders would not be permitted to have staff help in checking them against the tapes. In disputes with Nixon, he is entitled to counsel, but not the other side.

In manner as well as matter,

Even more significant was the indication that, after this, the White House would give no more evidence to anyone. That would mean nothing on IIT, the dairy case, the Howard Hughes money and would mean letting a Preident limit the grounds of his own impeachment.

Media Blitz

Then there was the media blitz. In imitation of "Alice in Wonderland," we had the defende's closing argument first, the evidence after: James St. Clair's tendentious account of the transcripts was given to the press long before the transcripts themselves. Key Republicans also approached before the fact, and television programs lined up. vision gives any President great advantages. Nixon, using that power to the full, obviously hoped to impress an image on the public mind that words could never undo, facts never overtake. But Watergate is not like that. The public has shown again and again that it will not be diverted from the real issues. Nor can Congress avoid its duty to pass judgment. What matters is the facts the facts of what Richard ported by tape recordings and other witnesses. What's more, the message from the Manhattan trial to special prosecutor Leon Jaworski is clear: Dean must be presented to future juries with far more care. In short, White House reports of Dean's death as a reliable witness are greatly exaggerated. Indeed, the fact that John Dean lives promises intensified assaults on him based on the Mitchell-Stans acquittal. Vice-President Ford's immediate assertion that the verdict "severely eroded"

The M chell-Stans case was never viewed in legal circles here as a conclusive test of Dean's credibility. The U.S. attorney's office in New York brought the Mitchell-Stans indictment a year ago despite pleas for caution from Washington counterparts, then conducting the Watergate investigation, Elliot Richardson as attorney general was always leery about the case.

Lacking documentary evidence, the prosecution relied on wit-nesses—Bradford Cook, ousted chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, and discredited New Jersey politician Harry Sears—who proved to be disasters on the stand, Dean, playing only a minor role in the Vesco affair, could not compensate for inadequate key government witnesses

Nevertheless, the Mitchell-Stans defense lawyers did undercut Dean's credibility with the jury. By describing him as a confessed felon who was now talking solely to buy a lighter sentence, the Mitchell-Stans lawyers establish-ed the model defense for accused

Dean's triends believe the New York prosecution inadequately prepared the jury for his testimony and hope Jaworski will take note. Such preparation would present Dean as a man who could have weathered the storm had he denied everything and joined fellow Nixon lieutenants in noncooperation but instead invited a spiracy. Dean's decision to go secretly to the U.S. prosecotor came two weeks before he first feared the White House had marked him as the Watergate scapegoat. But such a gilding of Dean must be restricted to the courtroom, thanks to gag rules imposed by federal Judges John Sirica and Gerhard Gesell. On Feb. 15, Gesell tongue-lashed Jaworski for his televised defense of Dean's credibility and ordered him off TV talk shows. Thus, while government officials from the President and Vice. President on down can assault Dean, the prosecutors cannot defend him.

Intensify Attack

Long before juries are empaneled in Watergate cover-up cases, however, Dean's credibility will be tested in the House impeachment proceedings. Consequently, the attack by the White House propaganda machine on Dean's credibility will intensity, based on the Mitchell-Stans verdict.

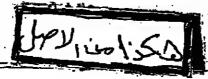

A rare public defense, not only of Dean's credibility but his role in history, was made last week in the University of Oklahoma Law Day lecture by Robert C. McCandles, formerly Dean's cocounsel. "Had he not come forward, leaving aside motives, America's democratic proces and our precious civil liberties would today be in grave peril without his decision to testify, and without the prosecutors' be as a grappling book to break the wall of the cover-up and conspiracy," said McCaudles.

McCandles is no objective source, but he correctly defined Dean's crucial role in breaking the scandal. As such, Dean re-mains the major threat to the President in a form scarcely diminished by the "not guilty" verdict in New York.

Still on a no-way-womeu's-libwill-catch-me track, Mrs. Mitter-rand said that, if ber busband is elected, she sees herself as a gobetween "and I bope I'll be able to help." But basically, the spotlight is not for her and she sincerely loatbes having to talk about herself and her family.

When told that she projected a rather bourgeois picture and asked if that didn't embarrass her, Mrs. Mitterrand nips off the top of a rhododendron and says: "Not at all. After all, le sociahame n'est pas le pauperisme socialism is not pauperismi," theater.

Last fall he brought Merce Cunningham and John Cage to do their thing with the Opera's dancers, and it went so well that their "A Day or Two" will be back in the repertory in mid-June. Tuesday night, Carelyn Carlson made her deout at the Palais Garnier in her new dual capacity of civile and charcog-rapher, and—with nine dancers Liebermann has engaged to work with ber on a per-performance basis-inaugurated a new prograin of low-price dance spectaeles of an hour or so beginning al 6:30 p.m.

After several years with Aiwin Nikolais, in itself an indication of an original view of dance and theater. Miss Carlson has transferred herself and her prolific choreographic activity to Europe. Her only previous appearance at the Opéra was a year ago, on the program devoted to the music of Edgar Varese, to which her ting gem of a solo to "Density 21.5" was just about the only memorable con-be out of college somewhere.

Still, the Louvre is on the Tour laken by travelers from all over the world who are determined to be able to say when they get home that yes, they did visit the Louvre.

That's what travel is for. of course, as anybody who has traveled knows-the nosey neighbors with their rude questions. Did you throw a paper airplane from the top of the Etifel Tower?

You didn't? Wc did.

Or, André was arrested of but it is well worth it, wasn't it. Andre? And if you happen to say, I thought it was Andrew, there is always a ready answer: Oh, no. it was always André, he's part French from away back, am I right. Andre Jean-Louis Barrault !

What can you say to neighbors bke that? People fight off rude nelghbors by staring hopolessly at The Battle of Borodino (actually it was only a drinking dispute, and Borodino was wrong . people trying to get something from a painting that it doesn't have for anybody, let alone for an American determined in two weeks to take home every ounce of culture there is, the Gulde Books and strong arches helping. All the same let the hat be taken off to the tourist, for it ls his support of the great museums of the world that is keeping the balance of world monetary power not totally with the American oil boys who secretly own Arabia Deserta but pretend to be helpless victims of complicated Middle Eastern intrigue, a pretense that has raised the price of gasoliue in America from around 30 cents to around 90 a gallon. And in their ads they dou't give us anything like a Toulouse-Lantree lady of Montmartre to look at, they give us a rotten new trademark and a stupid new slogan—Effo proteers Nature, (But of course Effo does it only by not polluting nature quite as much as it could have. had the trouble-makers not made so much trouble-and about Alaska, at that, where now only the salmon and the Kodiak bear

The Others

They seem to be willing either not to have any culture at all, or to pick it up wherever they happen to find it, generally without being sure that it is culture or that they are picking it up. If anybody in Fresno had made magnificent golden picture of

Sunrisc Over Notre Dame and Mistinguett Kicking, on the Mall, right on the sidewalk, anybody on promenade would have stopped and admired both the artist and his democratic demonstration of genius, as any number of young people in Paris do every day, working a solid hour on one good masterpiece, picking up toe equivalent of perhaps 80 cents, and having the great work walked on immediately after the departure of the nameless un-

If anybody had done that m Fresno, he would have heard applause, and all manner of appreclative comments, although the net profit might have been as little as 40 cents

People in Paris are not surprised that young kids can put great pictures on the Boulevard des Italiens, right on the sidewalk, right under foot-it's a lot more sensible than trying to put a pleture on the ceiling at the Opera, where in any case Chagali has already been, and not for any 80 cents, either; honor, wealth, membership, critical appreciation, fringe benefits, and a long leisurely luneb on one of the Bateaux-Mouches.

Thus, we see that there are people who appreciate art as they are instructed to, or as they

And that there are the other people who go about their business, sometimes on bieveles with small motors fitted into them, wearing in and out of heavy traffir like well-schooled ballet dancers in a riot scene.

These people can take the Mona Lisa or leave it. They do not feel the need to be more cultured than ther are, or than the neighbors are, and they do not want to buy a Picasso as an investment, even if it is a forgery, just so it has an interesting story, such as the story about how Picasso actually made the painting in imitation of Matisse, who didn't know how to draw a horse, so the horse is a little strange, having only two legs, and so on and so forth.

know about 4 bis Rue de Chàteaudun, where for the next couple of weeks they may see about three dozen small paintings signed B.M. de Route, a slim man of 50 or so, said to be a Montenegran, said to be a prince.

The paintings must be seen to be enjoyed, for that is indeed the most apt word for the effect they have on the beholder They are wild, they are strange.

they are simple, they are mystic. they deserve fame, their maker deserres fortune. The exhibitor, the owner of the Sabena announces a relaxing new way to reach the Far East: the Douglas DC-10.

Horses for courses.

Next time you fly Sabena to the Far East or to Africa, it's possible you'll find yourself aboard a Douglas DC-10-30 CF. The DC-10 is one of the new generation of wide-bodied superjets which Sabena is bringing into service in 1974. Objective: to make your journey easier and more comfortable. Each of these new jets has been selected with a particular type of operation in mind.

flights. Another type of aircraft has been chosen for short haul operations. And yet another for the transatlantic route.

The wide bodied principle.

Sabena's new DC-10's were built by McDonnell Douglas on the new wide-bodied principle. The cabin is almost 19 feet wide - with 8 feet of headroom. You can really spread out in your seat. And you'll never bang your head - unless you're a Harlem Globetrotter. Even the passenger windows give you a 30% bigger view than on ordinary planes. While your hand baggage slips neatly out of the way into a personal overhead locker.

Smooth, silent power from

The Sabena DC-10's have a new kind of engine known as a "high by-pass turbofan," built by General Electric. Apart from being much more powerful. these engines - along with superior new sound proofing mean that you can converse quietly anywhere in the cabin.

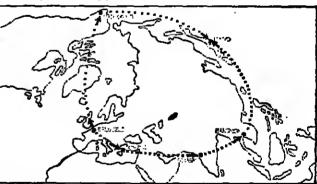

Easy come easy go. In Sabena's new DC-10's the fuselage is divided into separate rooms: with special wardrobes for coats and new. superbly comfortable seats designed to stay comfortable for hours on end. Each room has its own lavatories. There are even electric razor points in the cabin - so a toilet is never engaged while somebody shaves. And each room has two passenger aisles. So you're never farther than one seat from an aisle and Sabena's cabin service is even quicker.

New fresh air system.

Every passenger seat is assured of a supply of clean fresh air by a revolutionary new air conditioning system which changes the air in the cabin completely every three minutes.

The good neighbour.

The DC-10's turbofan engines are designed for more efficient combustion, reducing pollution through soot or unburned fuel to a minimum. So even if you don't fly, you'll appreciate the DC-10.

Polar voite via Anchorage to Tokyo: flyingtime 16 hrs 35 mins. Souther route, via Atheris, Bombay and Bangkok to Tokyo; flyingtime 18 hrs 40 mins.

Now, there's a better way to fly...

From April the DC-10 serves Sabena's Far East route - with a choice of flying over the top of the world (Brussels - Anchorage, Alaska - Tokyo) or taking the South route to the East (Brussels - Athens -Bombay - Bangkok - Tokyo). On the 1st July. the DC-10 comes into service on Sabena's Africa route to Kinshasa and Johannesburg. The DC-10 is another step forward in Sabena's endless quest to make your journey shorter, easier and more comfortable. In short, it's a better way to fly...

Go Belgian. Go Sabena.

EEC Said to Weigh Aid to Italy

PARIS, May 2.—Dismayed by Italy's shock decision to set ported today to be considering an exempt. offer of financial aid to Italy in return for the withdrawal of the import restriction plan.

The plan, announced yesterday, is due to go into effect May 7. Rome is to publish details of the scheme tomorrow. Reliable sources in Bonn reported the possibility of offering financial aid to Italy. They not-ed, however, that important probleme must be cleared up before the offer can be made.

Why did Italy take the decision? The answer, as with the decision to float the lira last year, is that there was almost Bonn considers the price issue to be as important as preparations for the conference.

Mr. Robwedder said his country is increasingly concerned by the higher prices of oil products on the domestic market.

In 1973, he said, the major-multi-national oil companies obtained sharply higher profits despite the crisis that began in the final quarter of the year.

BP Operates At a Loss in Some Areas

LONDON, May 2 (AP-DJ).-British Petroleum Co. reported today that "there are some areas where we believe we were actually trading at a net loss last month, including most of the main continental countries."

The report was given by chair-man Sir Eric Drake at the company's annual general meeting. Sir Eric said. "We are maintaining most of our trade, even it some losses are involved, and

1 accept our responsibility to attempt this. But this situation must clearly be remedied by higher prices before long.". Sir Eric said that "currently we estimate that our Middle East cost per barrel of crude oil averages nearly $9.50 per barrel as against the oft-quoted figure of "What we are faced with is an extraordinary situation selling oil the cost of which we don't exactly know and on such a small margin that it only needs a swing of a penny or so to have an enormous impact on our results."

He said that fortunately last winter was extraordinarily mild. But the effect of this, coupled with the industry's reaction to the quadrupling of the cost of oil and the fear of incipient recessico, has meant high inventories and a weaking of prices in Europe in the past month. Consequently, he said, BP's associated companies are not now fully recovering the increased costs it must expect to have to pay during this time so that there are some areas where it believes it was actually trading at a net loss last month, including most of the main continental

. In Rome, the Treasury Ministry said in an informal note circulated today that the import curbs were established in answer to EEC pressure on Italy to im-prove its balance of payments.

A month ago, the note said, the EEC monetary committee "invited" Italy to improve its balance of payments, arrest the export of capital, reduce domestic demand and limit the expansion of the monetary base.

The curbs are "aimed at meet-ing all these problems," the note The tone of the note seemed to indicate a certain amount of unhappiness among Italian officials about the generally negative reaction abroad to the import curbs.

It was also disclosed today that Italy has exhausted its $1.8 billion short-term credit facility arrang-

A spokesman for Bank of Italy governor Guido Carli said the credit had been withdrawn within the past few weeks.

The spokesman said that other credits remain in effect, so far virtually untouched.

Most Pay More Than 20% Of Their Salary for Food

NEW YORK, May 2 (AP).-Only three major industrialized nations—the United States, Australia and Denmark—can boast that food costs their citizens less than 30 percent of after-tax

By contrast, some countries report percentages above 30 percent. Sweden and Finland are in that category, and Italy is not far below it. But that does not mean that individus! bargains are similarly distributed.

Based on U.S. Agriculture Department figures compiled last September, a sirioin steak cost $4.04 in Denmark but only 69 cents in Argentina. In the United States the price was $2.29. In Britain, where one-quarter of take-home pay goes for food, a pound of butter sold for only 51 cents, compared with 95 cents in the United States.

If you lived in Japan, where the cost of food absorbs between one-quarter and one-third of after-tax income, you would have paid $12.83 a pound for a sirloin steak.

Americans might benefit from relative bargains at the food counters, but of equal importance is the fact that their incomes are higher than in any of the other industrial nations. That, of course, serves to lower the percentage needed for food.

Export Credit Parley Set

BRUSSELS, May 2 (AP-DJ) .-Officials of the U.S. Treasury and Export-Import Bank will meet with Common Market commission officials in Brussels Monday preliminary discussions on EEC-proposed gentlemeo's agreement on harmonizing export credit conditions to avold competitive outbidding, sources reported today.

The U.S. group will include Jack Bennet, a Treasury under secretary, and Alex McCullough, a director of the Export-Import Bank. The EEC proposes to bring export credit interest rates in line with general trends of credit granted by major exporting countries. It is seeking agreement on minimum interest rates and on maximum durations of credits for commercial export

Informants said that should the talks with the United States indicate that agreement is possible, Japan and other industrialized countries may be invited to join in the talks. EEC officials are understood to be in the process of putting the final touches to their proposal this week Small details still need to be ironed out, sources added.

But broadly, the EEC suggests that Official financing of commercial export credits should not be made available at a rate below ? percent. The duration of credits should be limited to 18 or 12 years for developing countries, 8 1/2 years for state trading (Communist) countries and five years for industrial countries. The EEC envisages that lower rates and longer duration periods can be granted in case of "proven direct competition."

Japanese TV Deliveries Fall

Japanese domestic deliveries of color television sets in March fell 44 percent from February and were 66 percent below the year-ago level at 147,000 units, the Electronic Machinery Associa-tion reports. The fall was due to price rises in January and a growing feeling among consumers of the need to economize, the association says. Howaver, March color TV exports rose 62 percent from a year ago to 266,000 units as a result of a massive export drive as manufacturers sought to make up for declining domestic demand, the association says. Inventories rose to 939,000 sets, 32 percent higher than in March

U.S. Treasury to Issue Bond With Record-High Coupon

By James L. Rowe Jr.

WASHINGTON, May 2 (WP). -The Treasury Department said yesterday that it will issue a lit-tle more than $4 billion in secu-ritles to partially refinance $5.6 billion in issues maturing May 15. One of the issues, a 25-year bond, will bear an 8.5 percent coupon, the highest coupon rate the Treasury has paid in more than 100 years, according to Under Secretary for Monetary Affairs Paul Volcker.

Mr. Volcker sald most of the regular quarterly refinancing is aimed at wholesale money market dealers, rather than individuals, although bonds can be purchased in denominations as small as $1,000. The Treasury will auction $300 million of the bonds. In addition to the 9.5 percent bond, the Treasury will auction $2 billion of 25 1/2-month notes and $1.75 billion of four-year, three-month notes.

The shorter note will be issued May 15 and mature June 30, 1976, while the longer one will be issued May 15 and mature Aug. 15, 1999, although it may be called at any time after May 15, however, the ministry said, the April figure represented a drop of $300 million, or 6.2 percent. It said exports of steel materials rose 81 percent over April 1973, ships 85 percent and automobiles 43 percent. Steel Prices Raised in U.S. As Government Lifts Controls

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 2 (AP).—U.S. Steel Corp., the nation's largest steel producer, joined others in the industry today and announced price increases that were less than predicted before government price controls were lifted.

U.S. Steel said it would raise prices on its full product line by an average of 5.7 percent, effurther breakdown of the in-

Industry observers had predicted increases of between 13 and percent following elimination price controls.

A broad range of steel products, from airplanes and automobiles to bolts, boats and bobbie plns, will be affected by the increases, announced one day after the Cost of Living Council's wage and price controls expired. Ninth-ranked Wheeling-Pittsburgh Steel Corp. also announced increases effective tomorrow and said they would include a raise of approximately 9 1.2 percent in the base price of tin mill products used in making cans. Wheeling-Pittsburgh also announced it was raising the base price of all steel products an average of 6 percent. The Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. said it was boosting its prices by 10 to 25 percent for tubular and other products, while Revere Copper & Brass followed other companies in boosting copper and brass mill prices.

The cost of most airplanes manufactured by Beech Aircraft also was hiked today. The first round of price hikes in the metals industry came yes-terday, led by third-ranked Na-its tin mill costs, and by smaller producers announcing higher prices for various products. Director John Dunlop of the Cost of Living Council said two weeks ago that the steel industry had been forced to absorb $660 million in costs in the last eight

He added that if the industry attempted to recover its cost increases it would amount to a 22 percent increase.

U.S. Steel said its increases cover only additional costs incurred since Jan. 31, including provisions of a new labor agreement with steelworkers which went into effect yesterday. "The increases are in line with allowable under the previous Cost of Living Council rules," the company edded. During Phase-4 of the control program, the steel industry was allowed price hikes of 9.2 per-with European authorities on the feasibility of a declaration of principles between the EEC and The EEC proposed, in a letter sent to Canadian authorities last November, that Ottawa decide whether such a political charter would be in order. In his formal reply, Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau reportedly placed emphasis on the need to cast a cooperation rather than venture into vague statements of good intentions. Despite giving top priority to a "concrete" trade pact, European official says, the aldememoire does not preclude much closer political cooperation. For instance, Ottawa suggests that regular cabinet-level meetings be held to iron out political differences, But the same official points out that Canada is not asking for prior consultations on major policy issues. This is in contrast to Mr. Kissinger's recent insistence that Europe regularly consult with the United States on major policies in which Washington's interests may be at stake.

Would Be Unprecedented The Canadian request also surprised European officials because a trade agreement with Canada would be unprecedented. Despite a network of aid, trade and technical pacts with over 60 countries, the Common Market has no comprenhensive trade agreement with any major industrialized country. Negotiations with Japan ln 1972 came to a standstill because of Tokyo's bellef that Europe wanted too much freedom to cut imports from Japan, In trade terms, Canada is the second-largest exporter to the Common Market after the United States, and Europe is the secondlargest supplier to Canada, also after the Unit d States. In 1973 Canadian exports to the nine EEC countries totaled about $6 billion. Since Britain joined the Common Market in 1973, Canada has shown great interest in improving its relations with the EEC. Canada is a major exporter of wheat and paper to Europe, and is threatened by the much higher import taxes imposed by the Common Market. Canadian exports had had virtually duty-free tional Steel Corp., which boosted access to Britain.

SEC Charges Pennsy Officers With Fraud

WASHINGTON, May 2 'Reuers .- The Securities and Exchange Commission today charged top officers, directors and accountants of Peno Central Co. and subsidiarles with Iraud in connection with the 1970 collapse of the railroad.

In a related matter. Goldman Sochs & Co. agreed to a consent order resulting from charges that n made talse and misleading statements of material facts and omitted to state material facts in connection with the sale of the commercial paper of the Penn Central Transportation Co. between 1968 and May 1970.

Goldman Sachs agreed to the coasent order without admitting or denying the allegation in the complaint.

In the Penn Central case, the commission charged that the company made deliberately false and misleading statements concerning its financial condition in 1965 and 1969.

Specifically named in the complaint are the Penn Central Co., its subsidiaries Penn Central Transportation Co., Pennsylvania Co., and Great Southwest Corp.

Alto named are Stuart Saunders, former chairmao of the board: David Bevan, former chief financial officer; Peat Marwick, Mitchell & Co., the accounting firm and several outside directors -Edward Hanley, Franklin Lamding, and Stewart Rauch.

Dumped His Stock

Mr. Bevan is also charged with profiting on inside trading in 1969 when he allegedly sold 15,-000 shares of Penn Central stock without revealing the true financial condition of the company,

Mr. Bevan and others are also being asked to account for and return to the company some $4 millioo in corporate funds which were allegedly diverted to bank accounts in Llechtenstein,

The SEC charged that Penn Central, Mr. Saunders, Mr. Bevan and Peat Marwick engaged in a scheme to "improperly increase the reported earnings of Penn Central and Penn Central Transportation as reflected in the financial statements for the year endlog Dec. 31, 1969" and in the case of Transportation Co., for the year ending Dec. 31, 1963.

False Reports

The SEC said that the reports of Peat Marwick relating to financial statements of Transportation Co. and Penn Central were materially false and mis-

It charged that the statements were not presented in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles and the financial positions of the companies were not fairly presented by those statements.

The SEC said that Mr. Bevan sold the 15,000 sbares on six separate occasions between Jan. 6. 1969 and June 25, 1969 without disclosing "material adverse nonpublic Information."

The agency also said that in

Comments

The 1973 Annual Report will be posted to shareholders on 24th May, 1974 and will include the following comments in the Directors' Report:—

1973 was a year of strongly upward demand on all parts of the Group, both in the home and export markets, but also a year in which the full exploitation of this situation was hindered particularly in the U.K. by difficulties in obtaining supplies of materials and parts, by rapid changes in raw material prices, and by labour scarcity. All these things put up costs and placed burdens on management. Price control mechanisms in the U.K. left gaps between the rise of cost of raw materials and recovery from the market, and this had a considerable impact in those areas subject to the very rapid increases that were encountered in the costs of some

The result achieved, despite these problems in the U.K.. was assisted by the strong export capability of the Group and the substantial element of overseas earnings. It speaks much for the ability, flexibility and professional competence of our managements.

Direct exports from the U.K. element of the Group were valued at £142m (1972: £103m), being about 41% of the U.K. output, and a substantial additional proportion eventually went abroad when incorporated in customers' products.

During 1973 the Group committed itself to the faunching of a new civil aircraft, the HS 146. Under this arrangement Hawker Siddeley Group will find the finance necessary, less an amount of £46m at 1973 prices, which H.M. Government have taken as an investment in the project, and which is half the estimated faunching costs.

The economic climate in Australia and Canada was better in 1973 and this is reflected in the results achieved by our companies in these areas. Hawker Siddeley Canada has this year made a more reasonable contribution to our earnings in relation to our investment. This flows from the major teconstruction which proved necessary in 1968 and the subsequent reorganisation and modernisation of the plants; this company has now the capability and opportunity to go further.

1974 will carry the burden of the disturbance in the U.K. sector due to restricted working ("three-day week") at the beginning of the year and there must be doubts about the course industrial relations will take in the U.K. based engineering industry. There wilf probably again be problems of rapid commodity price changes and of lattly of continuity in supplies. The Group got through the three-day work period quite well, though costs inevitably rose in the process. The effects of that disturbance are likely to be felt for some months. We will have to face the heavy additional costs imposed on U.K. based industry in the March budget by way of increased corporation (a) and increased contributions to national insurance, as well as the costly effects on cash flow that other provisions of the budget are designed to produce.

However, order books are firm and managements have demonstrated their ability to act effectively to minimise the frustrations which bedevil industrial activity in the U.K. Our overseas earnings position seems likely to remain sound. It will, therefore, be a year in which only the optimistic could expect net profitability to show much improvement but there is no reason visible at the moment for any acute pessimism about the likely result.

Growth Emphasis on Energy Production and Supply

1973 report points the way ahead

VEBA is among the biggest of western Germany's industrial corporations, its activities cover electricity generating and supply, oil refining, the petro-chemical industry, plastics and container glass production, transport by land and water, and other services. Its substantial stockholdings include petroleum distribution and sales, the chemical industry fartilizer and interest industry fartilizer and interest industry. chemical industry, fertilizers and inorganic products as well as refining capacity and overland pipelines.

However, VEBA's main strengths are the generation and distribution of electrical power, and the mineral oil industries. VEBA has more stockholders than any niber single European company — 1.2 million, while the overall Concern employs a workforce in excess of 58,000.

Total sales of the Group during 1973 increased by 19% to more than 12 billion DM. The growth rate in the generation of electricity again exceeded the German average.

by 11.9% to more than 41 million KWh, although the increase in electricity supplied was slightly lower at 8.5%.

During 1972 VEBA put two nuclear power stations into operation and, by 1950, the company will have a total nuclear power output of close to 6.000 MW, some of it in partnership with other utilities. In view of the present energy situation it is interesting to note that 11% of the power generated by VEBA now comes from its nuclear capacity.

The input of crude oil at VEBA's refineries throughout western Germany increased during 1973 by 10% to almost 11 million tonnes, although supply difficulties were encountered towards the end of the year. Gasoline, aviation fuels and motor oils are marketed through the ARAL network of 9,200 gas stations, in which VEBA has n 28% interest. Heating oil is sold and distributed through the Hugo Stinnes AG, a subsidiary of the Group.

Earnings Situation
Although VEBA was still faced with heavy cost increases, above all labor expenses and raw material purchases, the earnings situation in almost all divisions improved during 1973.

The lacrease in electricity supplied and the growing use of nuclear power produced improved earnings, while a strong improvement in the mineral nil processing sector was only dampened by the tremendous price increases and supply difficulties of the last three months of 1973, VEBA's group earnings before taxation rose to more than 900 million DM, and the profit is in the region of 245 million DM. This provides earnings per share in the region of 15.—DM, compared with 12.—DM in 1972.

Including expenditure on power generating plant and electricity distribution installations, around 76% of the volume of investment by VEBA went into the electricity sector. At the end of 1973 generating plant with a net capacity of about 8,700 MW was being built, 1,060 MW being seconded for by atomic power stations.

The figure covering the mineral oil and chemical sectors was largely taken up by an additional olefines plant, three big crude oil tankers and refinery expansion.

Investment expenditure in the glass sector, and on the transportation, trading and services divisions, envered mainly rationalization and replacements.

inainly rationalization and replacements.

The Way Ahead Developments during the current year have to be considered with caution. Cost pressures in all areas have increased again and these can only be partially covered by productivity increases and rationalization, so that price increases are unavoidable. Despite this situation, another satisfactors begins to the constitution of the control satisfactory husiness year is expected for 1974. For lurther information and background material on the VEBA Group just write to: VEBA Aktiengesellschaft, D-4000 Düsseldorf,

One hundred million pounds for Britain

In 1973, for the first time BICC's exports of goods and services from the U.K. exceeded $\pounds 100M$. That is 28.8% more than in 1972 and results from our determined policy of continuing to make increasing contributions towards resolving U.K.

Profit attributable to Ordinary Shareholders was 14.7% up on 1972 at £16.014M, of which almost 60°; was contributed by our Overseas Group - which again emphasizes the value of our wide geographical spread of operations. 1973 has again been a progressive and successful year for the BICC Group. This success has been achieved despite the unprecedented rise in the price of copper and other commodities with the consequential increase in our Bank overdraft at a time of very high interest rates and despite the delay in obtaining approval for appropriate price increases in the U.K. and some overseas

Total sales rose by £167M to £628M, and even after full allowance for inflation, the large copper price increases, and exchange adjustments of £27M, were still substantially up on 1972. Operating profit was 32.7% up and, after higher linancial charges, pre-tax profit was

We have maintained the rise in earnings per share – from 7.80p in 1969 to 9.30p in 1970, 11.59p in 1971, 12.42p in 1972 and now to 14.23p in 1973. In Australia the M.M. Group of Companies had a record year as did Phillips Cables Limited in Canada. Excellent results were produced by our CEL-CAT Group of Companies in Portugal and by Scottish Cables (S.A.) Limited. In all these companies major additions to plant are in progress. Expansion is also plan-ned by our Spanish company and good results were achieved by our companies in Malaysia, New Zealand. Pakistan and

Rhodesia. The performance of our Associated Company, General Cable Corporation of U.S.A. improved considerably and we look forward to continued improvement in 1974.

Our U.K. Cables Group had a satisfactor, year with high levels of sales to home and export markets and our growing strength in the industrial sector provides increasing stability.

The U.K. Metals Group had a much better year than in 1972 with improved results in all activities except in our 19%, investment in Anglesey Alaminium where a loss was sustained. but where the general standard of operating performance is now showing some improvement.

your wife couldn't even bear the fishing art on the lampshade next she's sulking while you're out on the stream? Because that's the way it is in the pages of Mr. Lyons's book; that's the way it is in real life, and that's the way it's going to go on being until men are liberated from fishing or women are liberated from sulk-

Also, Mr. Lyons goes mushy helps his son to boat a buge brook trout, is a touching portrait of a neophyte getting the fever, and left me excited over an im-probable and dramatic catch. On

Suffering from fallen arch- on it to "unkill parts of myself ness and clubfooted humor, that otherwise might die," and your average fishing memoir is an invitation to yawn. But this time of year that could scarcely matter less. The reviewer is mad to be off and thrashing water with bemboo. Short of the real thing, any humble text will serve, if only to provide monotony to dream by Astonishingly, Nick Lyons's "Pishing Widows" more than serves. At its best, it even knocked me out of my fantasies and into the suthor's own memories. And I found myself humming with impatience as be pretended to enjoy a leisurely vacation dinner with his wife. I gasped with relief when he finally escaped to streamside and beheld an enormous evening insect hatch. My arm ached with pleasure when the first trout struck. I sniffled when a big one got Naturally, Mr. Lyons commits some of the lesser sins of the fishing memoir, which is why I especially enjoyed "Fishing Widows." He absolutely oozes trout-snobbery. Trout-snobbery is when you count in the country of the state of the country of the coun when you accept an invitation to appraise the fishing equipment of a recently deceased angler, and bristle with outrage to discover that his Wes Jordan Orvis has been used by a guy who drives a motorcycle and likes to sit on the piers at Sbeepsbead Bay and drink a few beers on a hot sum-mer evening. Trout-snobbery is when you condescend to venture among the proles on Riverside Drive and learn what little there is to know about "The Fine Art of Hudson River Fence Fishing." ("Fortunately I doubt if I can ever master this art.") But I'm a trout-snob too and so I embrace Mr. Lyons.

He flashes a knuckle or two of male chauvinist pigginess. "Fishing is complexly irrelevant," be writes in his prologue, "and its very capacity to absorb men com-pletely makes it the more valuable to them-and the less intelligible to women. A woman may not like the idea of a mistress, but another woman is something she can un-derstand and fight. Fishing—unintelligible and irrelevant to the uninitiate is, as the wise judge Robert Traver wisely notes, worse than adultery."

But, I ask you, how would you feel if you had actually been knocked unconscious by a fellow as happens to the hero of the semifictional 'Fishing Widows: A Tale." Just suppose you loved to fish so much that you depended nights to watch the sunrise glinting off the water until crow's feet creep around our eyes? Has Mr. Lyons plumbed these mysteries for the edification of those who sulk and refuse to understand? Not quite He writes: "Twenty-five years sgo that sage, Mr. Edward Zern. claimed that roughly two-thirds of all fishermen never eat fish. This should surprise nobody. Fish is brain food. People who eat fish have large, well-developed brains. People with large, well-developed brains don't fish." But that is the clubfooted joker putting in his groatsworth, say I. It doesn't matter, Let toe sulkers sulk. As the diary found in that dead angler's fishing vest puts it: "Rena would never un-derstand. Never did. Not Clarise. Not Julie. Not even the shrill crisp of the morning or the quick disappearance of a dry fly Not the swallows sweeping down the stream's alley, the stream birds beginning to work when n good hatch gets under way. Not the deep satisfaction of laying down a good cast, several in a row, 60 or 70 feet of line poised in the air and then reaching toward the eddy behind the midstream rock. Not the squirrel who shared my snack a half hour ago. Not the colors of the water or the sharp, sudden tug of a fat native trout. They never did. They never will. I was never sble to tell them the slightest bit of it, not any of them."

So just try to give a little, fellow fishing-pigs of the world. Keep in mind that after twothirds of the vacation has been spent fishing, Mr. Lyons lets his wife decide what to do with the other third. Provided, of course, that the fish have stopped biting.

Mr. Lehmann-Haupt is a New York Times book reviewer.

By Alan Truscott

An observer from outer space who embarked on a sociological comparison of the United States and Italy would collect some interesting if puzzling fragments of information. The Italians have older buildings but smaller cars, he would note, they use a spoon more in eating and they never play contracts of one club.

This last oddity exists because one club in Italy is always artificial and forcing, although not invariably strong. Whether the Italians lose anything by being unable to play in one club is not clear, When an American plays in one club he regrets it more often than not. The silence of both opponents is an ominous in-dication that they fancy their defensive prospects because they have the bulk of the clubs.

A case in point is the diagramed deal from a recent duplicate game. West had too much length and strength to bid over South's prepared club open-ing, which became the final contract Why North failed to respond one diamond with his six high-card points only he could say. As a result, his partner had to struggle in a three-three fit,

The South players in one notrump usually went down 100 points. In one club, East-West had a chance for a two-trick defeat worth 200 and a fine duplicate score. West defended skillfully.

There was no clearcut opening lead. His choice of the spade ace did no harm as it turned out, and allowed him to study the dummy at trick two.

.It was clear that his partner did not have much, but there was

Kentucky Derby Has Its Largest Field

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 2.-Twenty-three horses were enter- : less than the 24-horse limit set ed today for Saturday's Kentucky ; yesterday by the Kentrcky Rac-Derby making it the largest field and the richest race in the classic's 100 year history.

A neavy rain pelted the Churchill Downs course as owners and trainers officially entered their horses for a shot at the winner's purse of $274 000. The total prize money is $326,500.

The favored entry of trainer Woody Stephens received some mixed luck in the post-position draw for the mile and a quarter extravaganza. Judger, owned by Seth Hancock and the stronger part of the entry, drew the Nn. 22 post, an uniavorable out-side position. Cannonade, owned by John Olin, will start second from the rail.

Agitate, the California Derby winner which will be ridden by Willie Shoemaker, drew the No. 1 post.

The two main topics of today's Derby talk were the size of the field, and the weather. Although the track was deep in mud, the weather forecast was for clear skies for Derby day.

If all 2 entries go to the post Saturday, there if he one more

Queen Has a Winner

NEWMARKET, England, May 2 (Reuters).—A filly nwned by Queen Elizabeth held on in the stretch here today to win the 1,000 Guineas—the first of this season's English horse racing classics.

Highelere, a 12-to.1 shot, lauded the £35.494 ($88,735) first prize by finishing a head in front of 4-to-1 favorite Polygamy. Mrs. Tiggywinkle, at 11-to-1, was third, four lengths back. Bitty Girl led the 15-horse field for the tirst half of the mile race, but with just more than a quarter of a mile to go.

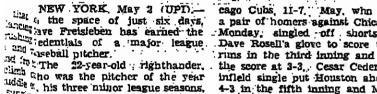

jockey Joe Mercer sent Highelere to the front. She appeared to be heading for an easy victory but then Pat Eddery and his mount, Polyganiy, made their move, and it took a photograph to separate the two horses at the finish.

It was the Queen's third Classic success, her first in 16 years, and the fourth time that the royal colors had been carried to victory in this race.

After the race, Lord Porchester, the Queen's racing manager, said: "Splendid. The fully is likely to go to France for the Oaks. But she is also entered in the Prix Saiot Alary as well as the Musidora Stakes and the English Oaks." Queen Elizabeth, who was standing nearby, quickly made decision; for Lord Potchester added: "Her Majesty thinks Epsom might not sult Highelere's action and it is more likely that she will go for the French Oaks." The Queen, smiling, spent several minutes in the winner's

—The California Angels traded nutfielder Richie Scheinblum to the Kansas City Royals resterday for third baseman Paul Schaal. Schaal returns to the team he started with in 1964, while Scheinblum goes back to the Royals, a team he hit 300 for in Schaal, 31, off to a .154 start after batting .288 in 1973, is ex-pected to replace Bob Ollver as the Angels' regular third baseman. Schemblum, always a slow starter, is hitting .176 and probably will be the Royals' No. 1 pinch hitter.

Frank White, a 23-year-old graduate of the Royals' baseball academy, is expected to step into Schaal's third base spot.

-A Texas state district judge. saying he was sorry that "physical attributes had finally become a matter of barter," ruled yesterday in Dallas that the World Football League cannot sign members of the National Football League Dallas Cowboys to future contracts. Judge Charles Long thus granted the temporary injunction the Cowboys had sought against the embryonic interloper. WFL at-torneys said they would appeal during the 20-day limit.

Almost twn full days of testimony from Cowboy players, coaches and officials preceded Long's ruling. And before he made it, he took time out to deliver what he himself termed a sermion.

"As a court of equity we are concerned about the mores and what has taken place in commerce, business and particularly in the field of athletic endeavor," the judge said. "It is to be regretted that phys-

on these historic grounds," bellowed William May, whose vote as chairman of the commission broke the tic. "This is one day in the year when Kentucky is known around the world. We don't want to decimate it or chop it up." Under the rule, expected to receive immediate legislative approral, uo more than 24 horses could start in the race. If the entry list exceeded that number. It would be "the duty of the racing secreto neelde which horses should be climinated. Tommy Trotter, the Racing secretary here and at Hisicali (Fla.), immediately said he would not carry out such an assignment "I just wouldn't do n." said Troiter. "You just can't ask a railog secretary to do something like that. It's a moral issue. Suppose you climinated a horse and he went on and became a champion. like Canonero? You'd be tagged for the rest of your life."

May, while conceding that the ruiling involved "some risk" to Trotter and the commission, said he didn't see it as a moral assite for the racing secretary or a legal harard for himself.

"People who pay $100 to nominate a horse to the Derby know the law says the race will be run according to Kemucky regulations," said May.

Asked if his group could change the rules so late in the game, he replied, "We think we can, We just did." But with only 23 entries today, it became only an academic issne.

Trotter, who worked II years for the New York Racing Association, said his position would be the same for any Derby in the future. He favors a qualifying standard based on purse carnings or stakes performances.

Apparently, he was willing to put his job on the line over the To encourage owners of some of the weaker 2-year-olds to skip the Derby, management has sweetened the pot for Saturday's 1 1/16-mile Twin Soires Pursepreceding the Derby-from $25,000 to $50,000. But the ploy didn't dissuade too many owners. As one horseman noted "No owner wants to tell his friends, "There's my Twin Spires Horse."

In some prerace festivities, the Pegasus Parade, necked out with a theme of "Remember the Year." today saluted the Derby centenniel with a two-hour-long display of floats, bands and prancing baton-twirlers.

Actually, Kentucky hardboots probably wouldn't bet on Pegasus. the winged horse of Greek mythology. First of all, he wasn't bred in Kentucky. And he never carried weight over a distance of ground.

The horses the hardboots are talking about are the ones that were raised in the Blue Grass state. Most of the top Derby contenders, as usual, are Kentuckybreds. Green bumper stickers with white lettering halling these home-town 3-year-olds are all over the place, the most popular being the one that says "I like Kentucky-bred Judger."

While the horses and their handlers awaited the big race, the track's famous tulips faded in the stretch like cheap claimers and were pulled up. Gardeners replaced 3,000 of the red and yellow tulips with red and pink geraniums in the fabled Tuhp Garden behind the clubhouse.

WASHINGTON.—On Oct. 13. I felt it was worth the strain 1960. John Kennedy debated Richard Nixon on television, Atthe time the question of Harry Truman's cussing came up. Mr. Kennedy refused to apologize for Mr. Truman's salty language, out Mr. Nixon had strong feelings that a presthe United States ahould not curse. He said in part, "One thing I have noted as I have traveled around the country are the tremendous number of chil-Buchwald dren who come out to see the presidential candidates. I see mothers holding up their bables so they can see B man who might be president of the United States, I know Sen. Kennedy sees them too. It makes you realize that whoever is president is going to be a man that all children of America look up to or look down on, and I can only say I am very proud that President Eisenhower restored dignity and deceocy and, frankly,

"And I only hope should I win this election that I could approach Presideot Eisenhower in maintaining the dignity of the office, and see to it that whenever any mother or father talks to his child, he can look at the man in the White House, and whatever he may think of his policies, he will say, 'Well, there is a man who maintains the kind of standards personally that I would want my child to follow."

good language to the conduct of the presidency of the United

I must admit that even though it's been 14 years since Mr. Nixon said this I was very moved, Perhaps, I thought, for the first time in history this country would have a president who didn't cuss.

Although Mr. Nixon didn't make it in 1960, he did become President in 1968, and every time he drove by in the last five years I held up my son in my arms the's now 201 and said, "There's B President who has the kind of standards I want you on my back.

You can imagine my despair and disillusionment when the transcripts of the presidential tapes were released and it turned out Mr. Nixon might have been the cussingest President in our history. Almost every other word had an "expletive deleted." and if you count the "inaudibles," and "unclears" and "ambiguous." it's enough to make a U.S. Marine top sergeant's hair stand

The question is what happened between the time Mr. Nixon debated Mr. Kennedy and the time he became President of the United States.

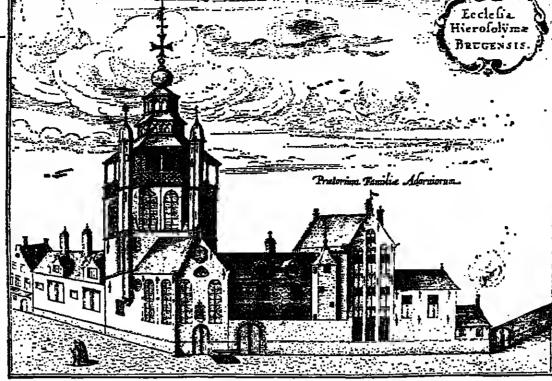

I sincerely believe Mr. Nixon was telling the truth when he said he was shocked by Harry Truman's language. I also believe in my heart he didn't start cussing until he lost the election to Mr. Kennedy.

A friend of Mr. Nimon told me, "I never heard Dick use an 'expletive deleted' until the 1960 Illinois results of the election came in. In 1962, he lost the race for governor in California, and he let out one 'inaudible' after another. I didn't know there were that many 'expletives' in the English language. It was hard after that to have Dick over to the house when the children were

"I thought when he becama President and he was more secure he'd stop using 'expletites' but Eppareotly once you start using them it's hard to give them np," the friend said.

And so it turns out that President Nixon was no better than Harry Truman when it came to language, and B lot worse than President Eisenhower, It's something we'll all have to get used to.

But I know one thing-I'm no longer going to hold up my 20year-old son in my arms when the President drives by. Any president who promises to restore good language to the presidency and then talks the way he did is nothing but an "inaudible" in

A 1703 engraving showing the Jeruzalemkerk in Bruges, Belgium.

A Belgian Count and His Family Church

By Jan Sjöby

PRUGES, Belgium (IHT).-For centuries, people have wondered what the original Church of the Holy Sepulcher in Jerusalem looked like. Built by Crusaders in the early 12th century, the first church burned down. The present church was built in the mid-1500s.

The people of Bruges think they know how the original looked. At B corner in the east end of town where the Jeruzalem-straat spilts into the Peperstraat and the Rodestraat stands the Jeruzalemkerk-the Church of Jerusalem, officially named the Church of the Holy Cross. Townsmen maintain that it is a true copy of the original sanctuary built over the empty tomb on Calvary. The Bruges church was built in 1427-28, after drawings brought back from the Holy Land by the brothers Pleter and Jaak Adornes, scions of a noble Genoese family who settled in West Flanders around 1270.

A casual visitor may wonder how the Crusaders may have hit upon the idea of building B church in what may be termed "Bruges Renaissance" style over the tomb in Jerusalem, some 300 years before that particular style of architecture had developed in faraway Flanders. Be that as it may, the Church of Jerusalem lauthorized in a papal bull by Pope Martin V) has an atmosphere all its own.

"Not counting all the private chapels at châteaux and castles, this must be one of the very few privately owned churches in the world," said the present proprietor, Henry. Count of Limburg Stirum. "It has been in my family for more than four ceoturies, passed down by direct inheritance or marital listson from 1427 on." "It costs our family a fair amount an-nually to maintain the place," he added. but if we have managed for some 400-odd years, chances are that we may manage for another four-odd centuries. We see it as a social and cultural responsibility."

The Adornes family stipulated, in the 1400s, that 133 masses should be celebrated each year and 133 masses are still read, about three times B week, by a retired parish priest from nearby St. Anne's Church.

The somewhat odd-looking edificerecently restored by a team of craftsmen headed by Bruges artist-designer Raphael Hermans-has not, Mr. Hermans maintains, changed much since the time of construc-

The two-story main building (there is an upper church and a lower church, is topped by an octagonal tower, in turn topped by a Polish-wedding-cake-type wooden campanile, a copper bulb, the cross of Maita and the broken wheel of St. Catherine, The Christian symbolism may seem somewhat vague but it makes sense to the 22 Apostoline nuns in the adjacent convent. The inside is, as usual in Belgiao sanctuaries, amply adorned with oils and sculptures. Under the tower is a replica of the holy grave, complete with a crowned eorpse of the Christ, in darkened wood. The major relic in the church is a splinter of the Cross, brought back from Jerusalem by Pieter's son Anselmo Adornes, after a pilgrimage to Jerusalem in 1471.

"We needn't take that piece of wood too seriously," commented the count, "If we pieced together all the chips in this end of the world, reportedly from the Cross, we would most likely have enough lumber to erect 10 crosses."

It will however, as usual, accompany the vial of the Holy Blood, allegedly containing a few drops of the blood of Jesus, at the Holy Blood Procession on Ascension Day, May 23 this year. That is one of the major events in the religious life in West Flanders, Back of the church is a row of six Maisons Dieu-old-age homes for retired nuns and other pious women, each with its own chimney. The last resident died two years ago. The standard of the dwellings is rather primitive by present-day standards but the Count of Limburg Stirum indicated that plans are well under way to restore the premises.

Scouts Unprepared PEOPLE: For Hefner, Bunnies

There will be no Playboy Patrol at Bethany United Methodist Church in Atlanta. A group of 11 and 13-year-old Scouts sponsored by the church had written to Playboy publisher Hugh Hefner asking for permission to us. the magazine's copyrighted emblem and flag for their troop. Playboy agreed and planned to take part in a ceremony today to the comedian. featuring four Playboy bunnies. But publicity about the plan hrought a torrent of protest. Said Scout official Tom Uffelman: "Some people thought the name was funny in B tongue-in-cheek sort of way. But most of our groups are sponsored by churches. parent-teachers associations and the like, and they did not see any humor in it." Scoutmaster Jim Stephens thought it was "unfortunate that a number of people have perceived the boys' desire as a sign of moral decay." He said that the totent was to have a "unique and original emblem."

Drummer Buddy Rich was fined $75 in Hobart, Tasmania. Wednesday for possessing marijuana and was ordered to forfeit $750 he had paid in bail. Rich, 56, was charged last fall while on an Australian concert tour. He was not in court when the case came up.

Informed diplomatic sources in London have told The New York Times that Walter Annenberg, 66, U.S. ambassador to the Court of Saint James's, will give up his post soon-probably in July-and return to the United States for business and family reasons. He has been ambassador to Britain since 1969. Annenberg announced his retirement at the end of President Nixon's first term, then decided to stay on at the request of the President. The sources could not say who would succeed Annenberg, but a name being mentioned as a possibility is that of Robert B. Anderson, the Texas oil executive who was once secretary of the Treasury.
